Broward League of Cities

★★★★★ 1 Vote

Student Ambassador Program: After a successful inaugural year of the Student Ambassador program, the Broward League of Cities has announced it is now accepting applications to the program from high school juniors who plan to pursue a career in public administration, political science or other government-related fields. In order to qualify for the Student Ambassador program, students must be residents of Broward County and attend a Broward County public or charter school.

Eligibility:

Must be a high school junior

Must attend a Broward County public or charter school

Must be a resident of Broward County

Must be available to attend monthly general membership meetings on the second Thursday of each month

Must be able to write and submit a 400-to-500-word monthly "My View" column on a topic of student's choosing to post online to the Broward League of Cities website

Award:

In an effort to support the future leaders of Broward County, the Broward League will provide four students with introductions into the world of public service. Student ambassadors are selected for a term that covers two school years, during which they attend Broward League of Cities general membership meetings, board of directors meetings and other functions pertaining to the operation of the League. Under the tutelage of the Broward League's Education Committee, students have the opportunity to meet with elected officials and learn the intricacies of governing at the municipal level.

Deadline: November 18, 2011

Students can apply online or with paper application. Students should review the website for complete details:
